Executive Summary

Louisiana's Fees Staff Study

This report contains information concerning 1551 fees. These fees generated almost $1.2 billion of revenue in fiscal year 1994. Our staff study of Louisiana executive departments, boards, and commissions found that:

- Statutes play a large role in establishing fees and in adjusting fee amounts. State statutes and administrative rules created more than 97 percent of the fees in this study.
- For almost 50 percent of the fees contained in this study, fee revenue covers the cost of the service. For 19 percent of fees, revenue exceeds the cost of providing the service. For almost 13 percent of fees, respondents to our survey answered that it is unknown or not applicable whether fee revenue covers cost.
- Sixty-seven percent of the fees included in our survey have been reviewed over the past five years. Most of this review occurred during fiscal years 1993 and 1994. Adjustments were made to 39 percent of the fees over the past four fiscal years.
- Executive branch departments collected 797 fees in fiscal year 1994 which produced $419 million of revenue. Almost 63 percent of this revenue is attributable to fees that do not or may not recover the cost of the services delivered.
- By regularly reviewing and adjusting fees, state government may be able to collect additional revenues for certain services. Based on conservative estimates, an additional $28 million could be collected annually to recover the cost of services.

To learn more about the variety of fees Study administered in this state, the Performance Audit Division Initiation of the Legislative Auditor proposed an examination of and fees and charges. At its meeting on September 20, 1994, Objectives the Legislative Audit Advisory Council directed the Office of Legislative Auditor to perform a staff study of Louisiana's fees. Our preliminary research revealed that fees administered by the state had never been compiled into a single list. We also found that little useful information was available concerning the number and amount of fees and their financial impact. Accordingly, the primary objectives of this staff study were to: Compile an inventory of fees administered by Louisiana departments, boards, and commissions. • Determine how often these fees are reviewed and adjusted.

> State statutes or administrative rules created 97 percent of the fees in our study. Fee amounts may be set by the legislature, a commission or department executive. For 57 percent of the fees in this study, the legislature sets or adjusts the fee amount. A board or commission sets or adjusts the fee amount for 25 percent of the fees. The entity setting the fee amount often bases it on the cost of providing the service.

More of the 1551 fees in this study (426) are categorized as licenses than any other category. Charges and "other" are the second and third most numerous, containing 352 and 170 fees, respectively.

In Louisiana, departments of state government, boards, and commissions collected fees of almost $1.2 billion in fiscal year 1994. More fees are charged to individuals than to businesses or other governmental entities. Individuals paid over $510 million in fiscal year 1994, and the majority of these fees did not exceed the cost of the services.

Fees Are Created by Law

Regular Review of Fees Keeps Revenue in Line With Original Intent

Fees help governments pay the cost of services by shifting the costs to users. Different policy considerations determine how much, if at all, taxpayers subsidize users of a service for which a fee is charged. For example, sale of information by a governmental department benefits primarily the purchaser of the service; therefore, the purchaser should pay completely for this type of service. Thus, if user fees are not set high enough, taxpayers who do not use certain types of services subsidize those who do. On the other hand, fees for services benefitting the public at large, such as education and healthcare, may be subsidized by all taxpayers.

After a fee amount is established, it should be reviewed periodically because the cost of providing the service changes. The policy objectives and the desired amount of governmental subsidy for the program or service may also shift. These factors make regular review and adjustment of fees a necessity. Sixty-seven percent of the fees included in our study have been reviewed over the past five years. Most of this review occurred during fiscal years 1993 and 1994. Adjustments were made to 39 percent of the fees over the past four fiscal years.

Although about 51 percent of fees in our study recovered or exceeded the cost of the service for which they are charged, 51 percent of fee revenue is derived from fees that did not recover costs. For almost 13 percent of fees, survey respondents stated it was unknown or not applicable whether fee revenue recovers cost.

By regularly reviewing and adjusting fees, state government may be able to collect additional revenues for certain services. Based on conservative estimates, an additional $28 million could be collected annually to recover the cost of services. Overall, Fee Revenue Grew by About 14 Percent Each Year Fee revenue grew at an annual rate of over 14 percent for the last five years. In contrast, the annual growth rate for other state revenues was less than 11 percent. Annual growth rates for specific types of fees over this time period ranged from one percent for tolls to 28 percent for charges.

Fee revenue deposited in the state treasury into dedicated funds grew faster than fee revenue either not deposited in the state treasury or deposited in the state treasury into the general fund.

Executive Branch Departments Collect 35 Percent of Fee Revenue Executive branch departments collected 797 fees in fiscal year 1994 which produced $419 million of revenue, or about 35 percent of the total revenue provided us by questionnaire respondents. These fees were concentrated in the departments of Wildlife and Fisheries, Environmental Quality, and Public Safety and Corrections.

About 63 percent of executive department fee revenue comes from fees that do not or may not cover costs. Revenue in fiscal year 1994 totaled $263 million for fees whose cost is not covered, or it is not applicable or unknown if cost is covered. On the other hand, fees with revenue of $99 million in fiscal year 1994 exceeded the cost of the program or service. In terms of revenue, these fees were concentrated in the departments of Public Safety and Transportation and Development.

Matters for Legislative Consideration

- The legislature should consider establishing mandatory review periods for all user fees to maximize self-generated fee revenue and assure that costs for services are equitably distributed among service users and taxpayers.
- Wherever possible, the legislature should consider allowing departments flexibility in setting and adjusting fee amounts.

Chapter One: Introduction

Study Initiation and Objectives Many states and federal agencies are turning toward user fees and charges as a significant source of self-generated revenue. Regular review and adjustment of fees can optimize the amount collected. In Louisiana, departments of state government, boards, and commissions collected fees of almost $1.2 billion in fiscal year 1994.

To learn more about the variety of fees administered in this state, the Performance Audit Division of the Legislative Auditor proposed an examination of fees and charges. At its meeting on September 20, 1994, the Legislative Audit Advisory Council directed the Office of Legislative Auditor to perform a staff study of Louisiana's fees.

Our preliminary research revealed that fees administered by the state had never been compiled into a single list. We also found that little useful information was available concerning the number and amount of fees and their financial impact. Accordingly, the primary objectives of this staff study were to:

- Compile an inventory of fees administered by Louisiana departments, boards, and commissions.
- Determine how often these fees are reviewed and adjusted.

Report Conclusions Classifying and Creating Fees, Setting Fee Amounts. State statutes or administrative rules created 97 percent of the fees in our study. The fee amount may be set by the legislature, a commission or department executive. For 57 percent of the fees in this study, the legislature sets or adjusts the fee amount. A board or commission sets or adjusts the fee amount for 25 percent of the fees. The entity setting the fee often bases the amount on the cost of providing the service. Reviewing Fees. Fees help governments pay the cost of services by shifting the costs to users. If user fees are not high enough, taxpayers who do not use the service subsidize those who do. However, fees for services benefitting the public at large, such as education and healthcare, may be subsidized.

The increasing cost of services and the decisions regarding subsidizing the cost of services make regular review and adjustment of fees a necessity. Sixty-seven percent of the fees included in our survey have been reviewed over the past five years. Most of this review occurred during fiscal years 1993 and 1994. Adjustments were made to 39 percent of the fees over the past four fiscal years.

By regularly reviewing and adjusting fees, state government may be able to collect additional revenues for certain services. Based on conservative estimates, an additional $28 million could be collected annually to recover the cost of services.

Revenue Analysis. Fee revenue grew at an annual rate of over 14 percent for the last five years. In contrast, the annual growth rate for other state revenues was less than 11 percent. Fee revenue deposited in the state treasury in dedicated funds grew faster than either fee revenue not deposited in the state treasury or deposited in the state treasury-general fund.

Charges to Users. More fees are charged to individuals than to businesses or other governmental entities. Individuals paid over $510 million in fiscal year 1994, and the majority of these fees do not cover the cost of the services.

Fees Charged by Executive Departments. Executive branch departments collected 797 fees that produced $419 million of revenue in fiscal year 1994. Almost 63 percent of this revenue is attributable to fees that do not or may not recover the cost of the services delivered.

Scope and Methodology

This report is a staff study and not a performance audit. Because of the lack of any single source of comprehensive information on fees collected in Louisiana, we concentrated on gathering information on fees for the purpose of developing an informational database.

The terms "fee" and "user fee," as used in this report, refer to a broad spectrum of charges for services, activities, and regulatory functions performed by governmental entities. For the purpose of this study, we defined a fee as a charge fixed by law for a specific service performed by a governmental entity. Imposing a fee on the users of such services helps government pay for their cost. A fee is different from a tax, which generates revenue to be used for general public needs. Taxes were not included within the scope of this study.

To identify agencies, departments, boards, and commissions with fee-setting authority, we reviewed the Executive Budget as well as state laws pertaining to Louisiana's fees. Based on this review, we compiled a list of 238 entities with fee-setting authority and surveyed these entities. We obtained information including the fee name, function, legal authority, amount of revenue generated and number of times charged. A questionnaire was used to gather this information, which is included as Appendix A. We asked that a questionnaire be completed for each fee.

We received responses from 164 state governmental entities, including all 20 executive departments. From these, we collected information about 1551 fees, which generated almost $1.2 billion of revenue in fiscal year 1994. Accordingly, all fee amounts reported in this study are expressed in terms of the revenue they generated in that year.

The list of respondents is smaller than the list of entities with fee-setting authority for two reasons. One, some of these entities do not charge fees. Two, others are affiliated with a major state department so their fee information is included with the responses from that department. For example, the Insurance Rating Commission was included with the Department of Insurance, and the Louisiana Advisory Commission on Pesticides was included with the Department of Agriculture and Forestry. We received no response from the following 15 entities:

- Louisiana School for Math, Science and the Arts
- South Louisiana Port Commission
- Greater Krotz Springs Port Commission
- Louisiana Board of Barber Examiners
- Louisiana Boxing and Wrestling Commission
- East Cameron Port Commission
- Madison Parish Port Commission
- Mermentau River Harbor and Terminal District
- New Orleans City Park Improvement Association
- Louisiana State Board of Nurse Examiners
- Pointe Coupee Port, Harbor and Terminal District
- Red River, Atchafalaya River and Bayou Boeuf Gravity Drainage District
- Vinton Harbor and Terminal District
- West Calcasieu Port, Harbor, and Terminal District
- West Cameron Port Commission

We were not able to acquire detailed information on each fee administered by Louisiana's universities or the medical centers of the Louisiana Health Care Authority. These entities administer thousands of fees and were unable to complete questionnaires for each fee. Accordingly, we obtained only information concerning student tuition and mandatory fees, application fees, student health fees, and vehicle registration and parking fees from colleges and universities. We obtained summary information on fees administered by the Louisiana Health Care Authority.

We entered the information in the questionnaires into a database and performed statistical analysis to examine characteristics of fees, identify trends, and determine how often fees are reviewed and adjusted. The results of this analysis are set forth in subsequent chapters of this report. We neither audited nor extensively verified responses and information furnished in each questionnaire. However, we did perform limited verification and follow-up on certain responses.

In addition, we were unable to accurately project revenue shortfalls or excesses caused by fees that did not match associated costs. Collection of such data would have been time-consuming for some respondents and therefore was not a primary objective of this study. To provide the legislature with an idea of potential shortfalls and excesses, we performed some basic projections. We obtained the fiscal year 1994 fee revenue for fees that respondents stated did not cover the cost of services provided. Then we assumed that the cost of services for these fees were 10, 20, and 30 percent greater than the fee revenue amounts collected. Similarly, we obtained the fiscal year 1994 fee revenue amounts for fees that respondents stated were in excess of the cost of providing the service. Then we again assumed that the fee revenues exceeded the cost of service delivery by 10, 20, and 30 percent.

Since the purpose of this report is to provide basic information on the fees assessed by state entities, it does not contain findings. We identified two matters for legislative consideration, which are contained in Chapter Three.

Report Organization	The remainder of this report is organized into four additional chapters and three appendixes.
	• Chapter Two outlines the classification of fees and examines fees from the user's perspective.
	 Chapter Three contains an analysis of when fees were last reviewed and adjusted.
	• Chapter Four offers an analysis of fee revenue growth.
	• Chapter Five presents an examination of fees charged by the 20 executive branch departments and the Division of Administration.
	• Appendix A is a copy of the questionnaire.
	• Appendix B includes a table listing the name of each fee, its function, and amount. Summary fee information is presented for the medical centers of the Louisiana Health Care Authority.
	• Appendix C is an index of all departments, boards, commissions and other entities that have fees listed in Appendix B.

Chapter Two: Classifying Fees and Users

Chapter Conclusions

The majority of the fees in this study are classified as licenses or charges. Nearly all fees in this study were created by state statutes or administrative rules. The amount charged may be set by the legislature, a commission or department executive. The legislature sets or adjusts fee amounts for a majority of fees. A significant number of fee amounts are set based on the cost of providing a service.

More fees are charged to individuals only than to businesses or governmental entities only. In fiscal year 1994, the amount of revenue from fees charged only to individuals exceeded $510 million.

Most Fees Function to Collect for Licenses or Charges More of the 1551 fees in this study (426) are categorized as licenses than any other category. Charges and "other" are the second and third most numerous, containing 352 and 170 fees, respectively. The categories identified are illustrated below with representative examples.

- Licenses--to hunt and fish, to conduct business (pharmacist, veterinarian, sell insurance, et cetera)
- Permits--to sell alcohol, drill for oil and gas, operate a hazardous waste facility
- Registrations--for motor carrier regulation, automobiles, et cetera
- Certifications--for occupations such as teachers; for birth, marriage, and death
- Tolls--for bridges and ferries
- Inspections--for agricultural and environmental purposes
- Examinations--to become licensed in occupations such as certified public accountant, nurse, psychologist, social work examiner

- Hospitals--for services performed in state medical centers
- Colleges--fees collected for tuition, parking, and mandatory student health services by state colleges and universities
- "Other"--fees with unusual or miscellaneous functions
- Charges--fees that entities could not place in any of the above categories, such as document filing with entities such as the Secretary of State

Because the last two categories are composed of many types of fees that would not fit elsewhere, no generalizations can be made about them. The number and percentage of fees in each category and their revenues, expressed in terms of fiscal year 1994 collections, are displayed in Exhibit 2-1 on the following page. Fee revenue amounts shown for colleges and state hospitals are much less than what they actually charge because we were able to collect only limited data.

Louisiana fees in this study totaled almost $1.2 billion in fiscal year 1994, which is 8.7 percent of total state revenue of $13.7 billion, which includes general government revenues, trusts, enterprise funds, and colleges and universities.

Most Fees Created by Law

Legal Authority. State statute is by far the most common legal authority for Louisiana fees. Several types of legal authority can establish a fee, as shown in Exhibit 2-2. Because more than one such authority can establish a fee, there are more responses than the 1551 fees in this study.

How Fee Amounts Are Set. There are various methods used to determine how much a fee amount should be. Most often, the legislature creates the fee and also sets the fee amount in statute. Alternatively, another entity may set the fee amount in various ways. One of these is covering the cost of providing the service, which is used almost as much as statutory directives. Another method is tying the amount to an inflation or other cost index such as the CPI, but this is rarely used in Louisiana. A summary of the fee-setting methods for fees in this study is contained in Exhibit 2-4. Since more than one method can be used to calculate a fee, the number of responses totals more than the number of questionnaires (1551).

Exhibit 2-4 Methods Used to Calculate Fee Amount

Louisiana Fees Charged Primarily to Individuals In addition to some of the basic characteristics of fees charged in this state, we also briefly examined fees from the point of view of the users of services for which fees are charged.

More fees in our study are charged to individuals than to any other category of user. We present data in terms of whether a fee is exclusively charged to individuals, businesses or governmental entities in Exhibit 2-5.

Legislature Sets Fee Amounts for Most Users

For individuals and businesses, most fees are set by the legislature. For governmental entities, fees are usually set by a department chief executive or a board or commission. Exhibit 2-6 shows who sets or adjusts the fee amounts for each category of user fees. Totals are less than 100 percent because remaining respondents answered "other" (see Appendix A).

Governmental Entities Only	16%	37%	37%

A majority of fees charged exclusively to individuals or to businesses are fixed in statute. For fees charged to governmental entities, the cost of the service is used more often to calculate the fee.

Exhibit 2-7 on the following page shows the different methods used to calculate fees for the different categories of users. In addition to the methods shown in this table, there were two other possible responses to this question. We omitted the response "Other" from this table because it is not specific and the response "Price/Inflation Index" (see Appendix A) because it was rarely indicated as a method by questionnaire respondents. Respondents answered that more than one method is used to calculate fees; accordingly, in most categories the percentages in Exhibit 2-7 total more than 100 percent.

However, if fees are considered in terms of magnitude as measured by total revenue in a user category, a different picture emerges. For individuals only, the fiscal year 1994 revenues for fees that exceeded the cost of service were 19 percent of total fee revenues charged only to individuals. For fees charged only to businesses, this comparison doubled to 40 percent. Finally, 87 percent of the fee revenue charged only to governmental entities came from fees that were in excess of costs. This information is portrayed in Exhibit 2-9.

Chapter Three: Reviewing Fees

Chapter Conclusions

Fees help governments pay for services by shifting the costs to users. If user fees are not high enough, taxpayers who do not use a service subsidize those who do. However, fees for services benefitting the public at large, such as education and healthcare, may be partially subsidized.

Regular review and adjustment of fees keeps them in line with the ever-increasing cost of services and with policy decisions concerning to what extent they should be subsidized. More than half of the fees we surveyed were reviewed during fiscal years 1993 and 1994. Thirty-nine percent of fees were last adjusted in fiscal years 1992-1995. Although just over half of the fees recover or exceed costs, just over half of the fee revenue in the study is derived from fees that do not recover costs.

By regularly reviewing and adjusting fees, state government may be able to collect additional revenues for certain services. Based on conservative estimates, an additional $28 million could be collected annually to recover the cost of services.

Fee Policy

Imposing a fee on the users of services helps government pay for those services. When a fee is not set sufficiently high to cover the cost of its program, taxpayers who do not benefit from the service subsidize those who do. On the other hand, if the public at large benefits from the outcome of a program--even though they do not receive services directly--then users of the program often do not have to pay the program's full cost. These policy considerations are illustrated by examples of different types of programs for which fees are charged.

Programs Benefitting the User. The sale of information benefits primarily the purchaser of the service and not the public at large. Therefore, the service user should pay completely for these services.

Programs Benefitting the Public at Large. In health care and education, many programs benefit not only program participants but also the public at large. In addition, many recipients of such services are unable to pay the full cost of services. Therefore, government often chooses to subsidize these programs through charging a minimal user fee that does not cover costs.

Regulatory Programs. Another category of programs includes activities that would have detrimental effects on the state and its residents if not regulated. These include operating a motor vehicle, hunting and fishing, and activities with environmental consequences. For example, if everyone could hunt and fish as much as he or she desired, a vital natural resource of our state would be depleted. The state regulates these activities with licenses, fines, inspections, and permits.

Setting Fee Amounts Using Direct Costs and Overhead. Another policy consideration in setting fee amounts is whether they should cover direct cost and overhead. Direct cost refers to the incremental cost of providing only the particular service offered. With hunting licenses, examples of direct costs of the hunting regulation program might include salaries of the personnel the Department of Wildlife and Fisheries (DWF) must employ to monitor hunters, investigate complaints, make population counts of wildlife, and issue reports about these types of activities. If DWF desired to set the price of its hunting license to cover the direct costs, it would probably establish a system to measure all costs of regulating hunting. It could then set the price of a license by dividing the estimated total direct costs by the number of people expected to purchase a license.

The department might go one step further by setting fee amounts to cover the program's proportionate share of DWF's overhead. In this instance, overhead refers to costs not directly related to regulation of hunting but normally incurred by DWF, such as utilities, maintenance of buildings, office supplies, et cetera. Regular Review Keeps Revenue in Line With Original Intent After a fee amount is established, it should be reviewed periodically because costs change. The policy objectives and the desired amount of governmental subsidy for the program may also shift. Therefore, if a program's fee structure is set based on recovering the cost of providing a service, and the fee is not reviewed and adjusted on a regular basis, a program may cost taxpayers more than is intended. Alternatively, if costs of providing a service were to decrease, regular review of the fee and its associated costs will prevent users of the service from paying more than the service costs.

Because we found no standard against which to compare the frequency with which Louisiana reviews its fees, we cannot say with precision how often a fee should be reviewed. Instead, many factors impact how often fees are reviewed and adjusted:

- Is the entity dependent upon the fee revenue? If an entity relies on the fee for a significant portion of its budget, it will approach its fee setting and review more thoroughly and frequently.
- Is the revenue dedicated to the entity that collects it? An entity that does not benefit from the fees it collects has little, if any, incentive to approach the legislature for statutory adjustments to its fee structure. Likewise, it has little incentive to go through the process mandated by the Administrative Procedures Act to set fees administratively.
- Is the fee set in statute? If not, department personnel will obviously have more discretion in determining how much the fee should be and will be more likely to review or adjust it periodically.
- Is the fee complex enough to require a cost model to establish or monitor it? The fee-setting entity may need personnel with budgetary expertise to establish cost models or other cost allocation formulas for the direct and overhead cost structures of the entity's fees. Establishing such models may be time-consuming.

Louisiana Might Generate More Fee Income With Regular Review and Adjustment Because of infrequent review and adjustment of some fees, the state may not be recovering as much as $182 million in fee revenue, depending on whether fees should cover costs and by how much they fall short of doing so. In Louisiana, more than 66 percent of fees in this study, representing 92 percent of all the fee revenue we studied, were reviewed in the last five fiscal years. This indicates that departments, boards, and commissions are generally reviewing their fees on a regular basis, though not necessarily annually. However, more than half of the fees have not been adjusted since 1991.

Year of Last Review. More than half of the fees in this study were reviewed during fiscal years 1993 and 1994. For more than nine percent of the fees, respondents stated that it is unknown or not applicable when the fee was last reviewed. Exhibit 3-1 groups fees in this study by year of last review. Further, as shown in Exhibit 3-2 on the following page, fees amounting to $1.09 billion, or 92 percent of all fees in this study, were last reviewed during or after 1991.

Exhibit 3-1 Fiscal Year in Which Fees Were Last Reviewed

Year of Last Adjustment. Thirty-nine percent of fees were last adjusted in fiscal years 1992-1995. More than half of the fees were last adjusted before that time. For 8 percent of fees, respondents stated that it is unknown or not applicable when the fee was last adjusted. Exhibit 3-3 groups fees by the year in which they were last adjusted.

We looked for relationships between the year of last adjustment and who set the fee amounts and found only one of significance: 84 percent of the fees that had not been adjusted since 1976 were set by the legislature. Exhibit 3-4 below illustrates this relationship. If fee increases are warranted, it may now be more difficult for the legislature to enact them. In 1995, Louisiana voters passed a constitutional amendment requiring a two-thirds vote of each house of the legislature to create or increase most fees, except for those assessed by a department headed by an elected official.

Source: Prepared by legislative auditor's staff from questionnaire responses.

Most Fee Revenue Comes From Fees That Do Not Recover Costs Although about 51 percent of fees in this study recovered or exceeded the cost of the service for which they are charged, 51 percent of fee revenue is derived from fees that did not recover costs. Thirty-three percent of fees we studied recovered the cost of providing the service or program for which the fee is charged, while revenues for 18 percent of fees exceeded the cost of providing the service. According to survey responses, examples of fees that exceeded costs include Sunshine Bridge tolls, weight permits and logo signs in the Department of Transportation and Development, beer permit fees, commercial driver's licenses, DWI reinstatement fees, motor vehicle inspection in the Department of Public Safety and Corrections, and utility and carrier inspection and motor carrier regulation in the Public Service Commission.

However, more than 36 percent of fees did not cover costs. According to survey responses, examples include the Crescent City Connection toll, the calf vaccination, application and registration fees for bank-thrift assessments, and securities agent and broker registrations.

For almost 13 percent of fees, respondents stated it is unknown or not applicable whether fee revenue recovers cost. Many of these fees (including 109 licenses) are administered by the DWF. These DWF fees are not specifically based on program costs; rather, they were established by the legislature. However, after our survey was conducted, the legislature enacted Act No. 514 in 1995, which directs the DWF to review all of its fees at least every two years.

Exhibit 3-5 shows the percentage of fees in the survey:

- that did not recover cost;
- that recovered cost but nothing more;
- that exceeded the cost of service; and
- for which it is unknown or not applicable whether costs are recovered.

Cost of Fee Revenue Shortfalls May Be Significant

We could not study the fiscal impact of not recovering costs because we did not collect information regarding the extent to which program costs exceeded fee revenue. However, Exhibit 3-6 presents potential fee revenue shortfalls assuming that costs may have exceeded fee revenue by 10 to 30 percent. These figures are based on the $608 million in fiscal year 1994 fees revenue that did not cover costs. We present these estimates to emphasize the potential cost to the state to subsidize the programs for which the fees are collected.

Earlier in this chapter we presented information relating to the year of last review and the year of last adjustment. More than 66 percent of the fees in this study were reviewed in the last five fiscal years. However, only 44 percent were adjusted during this period.

Survey respondents reported that the fee covered the cost of providing services for 172 fees but also indicated that the fee had not been reviewed within the last five fiscal years. It is difficult to understand how the respondents can determine whether the fees cover costs when the fees have not been reviewed in recent years. Excess Fee Revenue Could Offset Fee Revenue Shortfalls As previously mentioned, we could not study the fiscal impact of not recovering costs because we did not collect information regarding the extent to which program costs exceeded fee revenue. For the same reason we could not study the fiscal impact of collecting amounts in excess of cost. However, Exhibit 3-7 presents potential excess fee revenue assuming that fee revenue may have exceeded costs by 10 to 30 percent. These figures are based on the $360 million of fee revenue that exceeded costs in fiscal year 1994. We present these estimates to emphasize the potential overcharge to the users of the programs for which the fees are collected.

fee revenue either exceeds or falls short of costs of providing the services for which the fees are charged. Exhibit 3-7 shows the net estimated revenue shortfall from fee collections. Based on the conservative assumption of from fee collections. Based on the conservative assumption of 10 percent of fee revenue that is over or under costs, certain state services may be subsidized by other state revenues totaling $28 million.

Matters for Legislative Consideration

- The legislature should consider establishing mandatory review periods for all user fees to maximize self-generated fee revenue and assure that costs for services are equitably distributed among service users and taxpayers.
- Wherever possible, the legislature should consider allowing departments flexibility in setting and adjusting fee amounts.

Chapter Four: Revenue Growth Trends

Chapter Conclusions

Fees are a rapidly growing source of revenue for the state. Total fee revenues in this study have grown more than 14 percent annually from fiscal years 1990 through 1994. Annual growth rates for specific types of fees over this time period ranged from one percent for tolls to 28 percent for charges.

Forty-four percent of fee revenue in our study was deposited in the general fund of the state treasury. Fee revenue deposited in the state treasury into dedicated funds grew at a faster rate than fee revenue deposited either in the state treasury-general fund or in other funds outside the state treasury.

Background

Adjusted versus Unadjusted Numbers. We considered fee revenues in two ways because some entities were not able to give us complete information. In the questionnaire (see Appendix A), we asked entities for five years of fee revenue. Some agencies, boards, and commissions told us that fee revenue records for some of these years were missing or in storage. Reporting data for the fees that have missing revenue years would give the appearance of large volume fluctuations that may not have occurred. Therefore, we prepared unadjusted and adjusted exhibits in this chapter as follows:

- Unadjusted exhibits include all fees reported to us, even those with missing years.
- Adjusted exhibits do not contain fees with missing years, although they do contain fees which began or terminated during the five-year period from fiscal years 1990 through 1994.

Overall, Fee Revenue Grew by About 14 Percent Each Year The compounded annual growth rate for all types of fee revenue for fiscal years 1990 through 1994 was 14.3 percent (using adjusted numbers). The largest gains were in the charge and state hospital categories, which grew at annual rates of 28 and 27 percent, respectively. Vocational-technical school tuition grew annually at 16 percent over this period. In contrast, toll revenue grew annually at only a one percent rate and license revenue grew at 2 percent. The total fee annual growth rate is three percentage points higher than the overall growth in state revenue, which includes general government revenues, trusts, enterprise funds, and college and university funds.

Index	Compounded Annual Growth, Fiscal Years 1990 through 1994
Fee Revenues	14.3%
State Revenues	10.7%

Where Growth Occurred. As Exhibit 4-1 shows, there was significant growth in fee revenue from fiscal year 1992 to fiscal year 1993 of $344 million. Much of the growth was concentrated in the Charge and Hospitals categories. Of the $173 million increase in charges, $167 million is attributable to fees charged to the providers of certain health care services, such as nursing homes, centers for the mentally retarded, and pharmacists. The Department of Health and Hospitals instituted these provider fees in fiscal year 1993.

Where Fee Revenue Is Deposited Exhibit 4-3 on the following page classifies unadjusted fee revenues according to where they are deposited, whether in the state treasury as general funds or dedicated funds, or not in the state treasury.

Dedicated Fund Fee Growth. Fees deposited in the state treasury in a dedicated fund grew faster than either fees deposited in the state treasury in the general fund or fees not deposited in the state treasury. However, revenues from fees deposited in the state treasury-general fund have grown the most in actual dollars ($253 million). The fee growth and associated revenue are detailed below, using unadjusted numbers.

Adjusted Fee Revenue Growth As discussed at the beginning of this chapter, when we asked entities for five years of fee revenue, some entities told us that fee revenue records for some years were missing or in storage. To portray more accurately the growth rate of fees, in the remaining pages of this chapter we prepared exhibits using adjusted numbers. These adjusted numbers do not contain fees with missing years, although they do contain fees that began or terminated during the five-year period from fiscal years 1990 through 1994.

Where Growth Occurred. As Exhibit 4-5 on the following page shows, there was significant growth in fee revenue from fiscal year 1992 to fiscal year 1993 of $340 million. However, much of it was concentrated in the Charge and Hospitals categories. As we stated on page 28, of the $172.6 million increase in charges, $167 million is attributable to fees charged to the providers of certain health care services, such as nursing homes and pharmacists. The Department of Health and Hospitals instituted these provider fees in fiscal year 1993.

Dedicated Fund Fee Growth. Fees deposited in the state treasury in a dedicated fund grew faster than either fees deposited in the state treasury in the general fund or fees not deposited in the state treasury. The fee growth and associated revenue are detailed below, using adjusted numbers. The growth rates for the three classifications of fee revenue are similar regardless of whether adjusted or unadjusted numbers are used.

Although state treasury-general fund fees did not grow as rapidly as dedicated fund fees, they constitute almost 51 percent of total fee revenue growth over this period because of their high dollar volume. Exhibit 4-7 displays adjusted fee revenue growth in actual dollars.

Chapter Five: Executive Branch Fees

Chapter Conclusions

The 20 executive branch departments collected 35 percent of the total fee revenue of $1.18 billion. These departments charged 797 fees which produced $419 million of revenue in fiscal year 1994. These fees were concentrated in the departments of Wildlife and Fisheries (DWF), Environmental Quality (DEQ), and Public Safety and Corrections (Public Safety).

About 63 percent of executive department fee revenue comes from fees that do not or may not cover costs. Revenue in fiscal year 1994 totaled $263 million for fees whose cost is not covered, or it is not applicable or unknown if cost is covered. On the other hand, fees with revenue of $99 million in fiscal year 1994 exceeded the cost of the program or service.

Fee Revenue Concentrated in Public Safety Services The 20 executive branch departments and the Division of Administration, collectively referred to in this chapter as executive departments, charged almost $420 million in fees in fiscal year 1994. This represents more than one third (35 percent) of the fee revenue in this study. The remainder is charged by universities, boards, commissions, and other entities. We did not undertake an analysis of the remaining fee revenue because the entities are so diverse.

In the executive departments, DWF and DEQ charged the greatest number of fees, while Public Safety produced the greatest fee revenue. However, information received from the Department of Health and Hospitals (DHH) does not include the Louisiana Health Care Authority, for which we collected only summary information. Exhibit 5-1 on the next page contains the number of fees and fee revenue produced by each of the executive departments.

Legislature Sets Fee Amounts for Departments With Most Fees For three executive departments, the legislature sets all fees. Two of these departments, DWF and DEQ, have the highest and second-highest number of fees, respectively. All but 5 percent of Public Safety fees, which constitute the highest revenue amount of executive departments in the study, are also set by the legislature. Exhibit 5-2 shows who sets or adjusts what percentage of a department's fees.

Executive Department Fee Revenue May Not Cover Costs Fees representing 63 percent of the fee revenue collected by executive departments do not or may not cover the cost of the services for which they are charged. Most of this fee revenue is concentrated in the departments of Public Safety and Health and Hospitals.

For each executive department, Exhibit 5-3 shows how many fees are charged, what percent of them do not cover cost, and what percent responded either it was unknown whether cost was covered or the question was not applicable to the particular fee(s).

Again, it is a policy matter whether fees should cover costs because of legal and other considerations. Exhibit 5-3 also displays the fiscal year 1994 fee revenue amounts for those fees.

Appendix B Fee Profiles

Appendix B: Fee Profiles

On the following pages is a table containing the following for each of the 1551 fees we studied:

- the name of the fee
- its function
- its amount
- whether or not it recovers cost
- the fiscal year last adjusted
- the number of times the fee was charged in fiscal year 1994
- the revenue collected in fiscal year 1994
- the legal authority establishing the fee

The information contained in the table is taken from responses to questionnaires we sent to state departments, boards, and commissions. We neither audited nor extensively verified responses and information furnished on the questionnaires, although we did follow up on certain responses.

Functions of Fees. Fees are collected for governmental services such as licenses, permits, registrations, certifications, tolls, inspections, and examinations. The questionnaire listed these six possible specific functions of the fee and also the categories "Charge" and "Other." We intended that the word "Charge" would indicate a charge for services that could not be categorized in one of the six categories and "Other" would be a category for fees with unusual or miscellaneous functions. Because of the large number of questionnaires describing the function as "Other," we often assigned a more descriptive term for the function.

Fee Revenues and Number of Times Charged. Several respondents returned questionnaires with a revenue total for a group of fees on one questionnaire. Usually, their accounting system was not set up to provide totals for each fee charged. However, we attempted to include each fee provided us regardless of whether a questionnaire was completed for the fee. In these situations we used the term "Indeterminable" in the table. "Indeterminable" denotes that a department did not know either the total amount of fee revenue or the total number of times a fee was charged, but did know the total for the group of which the fee was part. In the table, we subtotaled revenue for each group of fees that individually have indeterminable revenue.

Further, for departments, boards, and commissions with "unknown" fee revenue amounts, the total fee revenue shown in the table will not be accurate. However, it represents the total revenue the entity provided to us. We provide a cautionary footnote in the table for each of these cases.

Legal Authority. The questionnaire contains four possible responses for the legal citation establishing the fee: a statute, administrative rule, Louisiana constitutional provision, or federal law. The respondent could indicate that more than one type of legal authority establishes the fee. The abbreviation "LSA-R.S." indicates Louisiana Statutes Annotated--Revised Statutes, whereas the abbreviation "Admin. Rule" indicates Administrative Rule.

Special Cases: Colleges and Universities, Charity Hospitals. After discussions with officials from Louisiana's universities and colleges, we decided to reduce significantly the scope of information requested because of the hundreds of fees these institutions collect. Therefore, for colleges and universities, the table contains information and revenue only for tuition and required fees, application fees, student health fees, and vehicle registration/parking fees.

The situation with the Louisiana Health Care Authority and medical centers is similar. We decided to collect only summary revenue information concerning the medical centers in the state because of the large volume of fees they collect. This information is shown at the end of the table.
